SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1841.

that the policy of the whig party is, to increase the power of this class, and thus depress the great productive multitude. Let us examine a clamor is raised for their repeal. this matter a little. The legislation of the coundoctrine of the great leaders of their party was, that low wages and coarse fare were blessings! And their acts were of course in accordance with their théories. But it is said Banks enable the few to live on the earnings of the many! Well, for the sike of the argument; let us admitit. And how stands the case? Banking in Pennsylvania has been as hadly managed as any where, and its worst features were introduced the under the control of the opposition. In our own State every Bank charter has been granted with opposition majorities in the legislature, and approved by opposition Covernors. And when it become necessary to probe those it was left for thenerve of Whig Commissioners the concerns of four or five, the first year of Afficia being the MANN A Own. Backson and his Secretary, Mr. Woodbury, have given the country many preachments of the superlative advantages of State Banks, and thus caused an emotmous increase of them. Now, if Banks cheat mechanics out of a part of their earnings, who banking have been vigilantly watched and carefully guarded by the whigs.

It is also said that the policy and measures of the whigs are opposed to labor. Let us see. The policy of the whigs is, to bring the powers of the government to protect the industry of the country against the restrictive system of other nations to produce a reciprosity of trade, and to enable American workmen, farmers, and mechanics to compete with those of foreign nations. While the opposition policy is wastefully to throw away the power to establish countervailing duties. The policy of the whigs is, to distribute the proceeds of the public lands among the States for the benefit of the people. The policy and measures of the whigs are to bring the government to aid the people, to increase the productive power of the country, to guard its interests, defend its rights, maintain its entire and complete independence, and to secure a shithful and honest administration of public af ments in agriculture have more than kept pace fairs. The whigs consider the government as with the prodigious merease of demand for its an instrument, the correct use of which is, to furnish the people with those advantages, and to more than a million have been added since 1831) give that protection which individual power can- are much fuller fed, and on provisions of a far not command. The policy and measures of the better quality than the 7,500,000 were in 1755. opposition are to consider the government as dis-foreign markets for her supplies. Since 1832, tinet from the people, and seeking its own existing in his imported no grain worth mentioning, and tence with out any regard to those who support it! till within the last six months prices have been

Nothing it seems to us can be more-monstrous than for the opposition to claim any, not to say country. England is at this moment so far from superior regard for the interests of the product wanting any of our bread-stuffs, if we had them

Talk about privileged charge, when the fact is before every man that the ragged boys of one enough and to spare. Again, it is estimated by males upon this subject. We have seen charmgeneration compose the rich men of the next The sons of the rich scattering with wasteful prodigality what their hard toiling, scrubbing parents had amassed, and the industrious and economical children of the poor gathering treas-ures for their children in turn to scatter to oth-at present, than it was in 1755; which is more

For the Whig & Courier. Defeat of the British Whig Ministry, and the Repeal of the Corn I was.

The affairs of this country and England have become very intimately connected, so much so, that we look upon the policy of her Government with about as much interest as our own. Indeed, some persons and some presses advocate The leaders and the presses of the opposition the repeal of the English corn laws, with as are continually prating of privileged classes, as much zeal and perseverance, and even more, though there was really in this country, a class, than they support or appose any single measure built up and sustained by the legislation of the of the English corn laws to effect us? What country, who are opposed to the labor and labor-tinterest have we, the farmers of Maine, in their ing men of the country. They also represent repeal? These are important questions and should be understood by every farmer. Every farmer should understand how the question of the corn laws stands in England, and why such

The English corn laws were unsched to en try has been in the hands of the opposition, for high duty on all foreign grain, which amounts courage the raising of bread stuffs, by laying a this dozen years, and, in what particular has it to a prohibition when the crops are good, but adbeen favorable to the working classes? The mits it free, or with light duty when the crops are short, and prices range high. Up to 1837, England produced generally enough bread to support the population, and in that year shipped some million hollars worth to this country. Now, it is said, she does not produce a supply and portions of her population are starving.

Whence comes this falling off in the production of Irond in Ergan In Wk, we that a Moon of seventeen millions, producing enough to feed themselves and us, are now, so soon, reduced to such extreme distress, as to starpe, or send abroad for bread? Is it to be ascribed to bad seasons, or the devastations of war? The effect must be traced to other causes than these.

These farmers are required by their landlods to have a capital of 30 to 40 dollars for every nere; that is, a man in England who hires a farm of Its ought to be held responsible? The abuses of acres is required to have from three to four thousand dollars capital. The late Hon. John Lowell, known perhaps, as well or better, as the "Roxhury Farmer," stated in one of his addresses, that the lessee of a first rate farm in Fngland was required to have; an independent capital of ten thousand pounds about lifty thousand dollars. And it is to this cause, the employment of capital, that agriculture in England stands indebted for the advances it has made, within the last half century, and the great perfection to Which it las arrived. It is common, I know, for those who write for our instruction in this country, to ascribe the advanced state of agriculture in England, to the encouragement of the to Agricultural Societies -to Science, and final-

We must presume that he generally means to help the Whirecause; but if his paper were got up expressly to furnish advantageous texts for the Evening Post, Albany Argus and New Era, especially on the eve of Elections, we do not see how it could be improved. Thus his article last evening on the strumule for an extension of the Bight of Suf frage in Rhode Island is precisely calculated, so far as it can have any influence, to drive away atl poor men from the Whig party, and wil doubtless appear in the Post, Era and Argus with all dispatch. It is lamentable that the Commercial, knowing well to what use such articles are out, will continue to manufacture them. The Whig General Committees are weary of express
